The Third International Online Scientific Conference ICT in Life (ICTiL 2026) invites original scientific contributions addressing theoretical, empirical, or applied aspects of information and communication technologies (ICT) and their impact on contemporary society. The conference offers an interdisciplinary forum for researchers and practitioners to present and discuss recent developments, methodologies, and applications of ICT across various scientific domains.

Topics of interest include, but are not limited to:

- ICT in education and lifelong learning
- Digital transformation in arts and culture
- ICT applications in economics and business
- Legal and ethical aspects of information technology
- ICT in electrical and mechanical engineering
- Smart systems and intelligent technologies
- ICT in sports and kinesiology
- ICT and societal development

Authors are invited to submit:

- Abstracts outlining the purpose, methodology, and key findings of the research,
- Full papers presenting original, unpublished research results.

All submissions must be prepared using the prescribed templates. Abstracts and full papers must be submitted electronically via the Indico platform. Submissions that do not conform to the templates or submission procedure will not be considered.
